

Welcome to Worship

Admiral Congregational U.C.C. @SJB

The Rev. Andrew Conley-Holcom

This fall, we will be using Luke's Gospel to delve into some essentials of discipleship: Surrender, Testimony, and Evangelism.

In September, we will concentrate on letting go of control so we can meet the Wayfinder God, the One who helps us plot courses from a vantage point far above the tumult of the seas we are sailing through.

Admiral Chapel and Admiral Hub

Admiral UCC currently has two "campuses": Its worshipping one (called "Admiral Church" or "Admiral Chapel") in the Lounge of St John the Baptist Episcopal Church, 3050 California Ave SW, and its community/rental center one (called "Admiral HUB") at 4320 SW Hill St (the "old" Admiral Church).

Imagine Economies of Gift,

Grace, & Enough

2 Books in Conversation,
Sunday Sept. 14, 12:30pm

Join progressive thinkers considering what an alternative economy that cares for the Earth and Her people might look like, informed by two very different yet deeply aligned books.

Ezra Klein and Derek Thompson co-wrote Abundance collaboratively, pulling from their respective strengths (political analysis for Klein, economic analysis for Thompson). The work seeks to create a new liberal political lens through which to view the world that is grounded in abundance instead of scarcity and an optimistic vision for the future. Abundance explores the impact of regulatory environments on innovation and progress, the role of government in fostering a culture of abundance, and the intersection of policy and technology in shaping the future.

Robin Wall Kimmerer wrote The Serviceberry, her follow-up to bestselling book Braiding Sweetgrass, to explore the idea of gifts and gift economies, contrasting them with commodities and market economies. She discusses the philosophical differences between economies driven by scarcity and the natural human impulse for generosity. She provides examples of natural economies and how humans can hope to imitate them.
